

When you remember the loves of your life—there is usually a special song that comes to mind. Something that was playing the night you met – something that was in the air that summer or sometimes . . . just a special lyric that reminds you of that special person. It seems that when it comes to love –our lives create their own soundtrack. So creating the soundtrack for the ultimate movie about love –was quite a challenge. Enter: Salaam Remi: the amazing music producer who's lent his expert touch to many of today's hottest artists. His first daunting task: rethink and re-record the familiar television theme song into a new pop song. Amazingly he did . . . and "Labels or Love" was born. And if it wasn't fabulous enough—who showed up to record it? Pergie! And she kicked it up to a star level that we could only dream about. And speaking of stars . . . Next challenge: Create an original song for the magnificent Jennifer Hudson to sing for the end of the movie. And boy does she sing it. She makes it almost impossible not to dance out of the theater. The rest of the CD is filled with an eclectic mix of exciting new songs and we even included a classic rock blast from the past.

My hope is that listening to this music might create another special memory for you—something to help you remember the movie about the love lives of our favorite girls: Carrie, Miranda, Charlotte and Samantha.

Special thanks to our stellar composer Arron Zigman whose heart is as big as his talent. To our tireless music leader Erin Scully and her dedicated team. To the New Line music department and to all the musicians and vocalists who added their skill and souls to this recording.

—All my best, Michael Patrick King
